REPORT OF THE
SCHOOL DEPARTMENT

To the School Committee and the Citizens of North Kennebunkport:

The children of today are the hope of tomorrow. The war may be ours, but "the peace will be theirs." We have never declared our love for the children any stronger than during this war. We have given our young people, our work and strength, and our money and resources to save their future. The children own the future that is lying all about us, and we must be sure that we leave no unnecessary encumbrances in their way.

Changes in education are taking place to fit the times and the needs of the children for the future. First, the schools' are giving less attention to memory work and more to brain development. Such memory work, as is given, is concentrated on spelling, arithmetic tables and vocabularies, which knowledge will help all pupils in all their future work. The schools are giving much more attention to training pupils to think and to solve their problems and projects by thinking, work which they sometimes dislike to do. If our country is to survive in the form intended by our forefathers, our citizens must be trained to think for themselves, and this is a problem for the schools of today. Encyclopedias and reference books can displace memories, but nothing can take the place of brains. Employers can install machines to do nearly everything but think, hence, the job for the schools is to teach the pupils to think.

The Town of North Kennebunkport is one of the most fortunate towns in this State. It has been able to secure and retain teachers of experience, many of whom have been taking courses during this school year, to enable them to use new methods to teach the pupils to think, to read, and to study, for the world which will follow the peace. All of these teachers are well equipped to carry forward the school work in the ways demanded by the times. They are all helping the pupils develop good habits and self-control. Upon these emotional traits, the health, happiness and economic value of the future, of these pupils, will largely depend. The schools of this Town will go forward and progress with these progressive teachers.

According to a recent survey, there are more than 150 schools without a teacher. It can be understood, therefore, why a teacher could not be found for the Irving school. Several experienced teachers were interviewed who could have been induced to teach, if the school had been located on a public bus line with suitable service.

Many new books and work-books have been added to the equipment of the different schools. The furnishing of the books and supplies has necessarily been handicapped by the limiting quotas of the publishers and wholesalers. In some cases months have passed between the sending of the orders and the receiving of the goods. Shortage of help has also contributed to many delays. Several orders remain unfilled at the present time. One very important improvement is the completion of the lighting system at the Iron Bridge school. These lights, were needed very much, as the school was very dark in the morning, with the "War Time," so-called.

The Durell school is very crowded. Some changes were made to take care of the situation, temporarily. In a rural school, with all grades, more than forty pupils is too heavy a teaching load for one teacher. It creates a condition which is unfair to the pupils as well as to the teacher who is trying to give the pupils adequate opportunity. I hope that a room can be added to this school.

At the Burnham school, I would like to suggest the installation of a different heating system. A furnace unit with an outside jacket and ducts leading to each of the rooms and taking the cold air from each room, could be considered. This unit should be one which would not be confined to the use of only one kind of fuel, but should be a furnace which could burn coal or wood, or with a suitable unit, could burn oil. At this school, due to the addition of the pupils from the Irving school, additional seats are needed, and more space is needed for these seats. The school entry could be enlarged and the above mentioned furnace could be placed in it, with the necessary ducts leading to each room.

The steps at the North Chapel school are very dangerous and need to be rebuilt. Some attention to the grounds of this school by grading around the steps and front of the building might save an accident in' the future. I would suggest the painting of this school room with a very light colored paint to help with the lighting of this school room. The trees around this school have been growing taller and more dense as the years pass, and this fact accounts for the room getting darker and darker each year.

The understanding support of most of the citizens of this Town has been appreciated by all school officials. In the immediate future, it is to be expected that supplies and services will be more difficult to obtain, and your continued patience and understanding of the situations prevailing, due to the war, will be as much appreciated, as in the past.

Respectfully submitted,

ADEL C. LOMBARD,

Agent for the Schools.
